I am currently using Laravel's query builder to build a query that selects all users that have their timestamp greater than a given date. Here is the relevant code: $users = DB::table('users') ->select('users.id', 'users.name', 'users.last_login') ->whereDate('last_login', '>', $time_and_date) ->get(); This works, but is very inefficient because it first selects all the records, and then filters them out using whereDate. I know how to just select the column I need by passing a string directly to the select function: $users = DB::table('users') ->select('users.id', 'users.name', 'users.last_login') ->where('last_login', '>', $time_and_date) ->get(); but I'd like to know if there is a way to accomplish the same with the Laravel's query builder. A: The query you write is already equivalent to what you wrote in the second example. It's only inefficient because you do not need all the data to make your query work. If you add whereDate('last_login', '>', $time_and_date) to your select statement, you will get that column from all rows. You can then select only the columns you need and then limit your whereDate clause. Try using ->select('users.id', 'users.name', 'users.last_login') ->whereDate('users.last_login', '>', $time_and_date) ->get(); #include "CGuiWidgetHelpers.h" DWORD CGuiWidgetHelpers::GetAttributeId(DWORD id) { if (id == GUIGRIP_ID || id == VIEW_HELP_ID) return THUGUI_AWC_ATTRIB

Hall* July 3, 2012 (Mimeso/EMTV) - Six Cambodians making it to the top 30 of the 2012 Miss Cambodia pageant in Seoul have been crowned on Wednesday night, garnering the best crown and a cash prize of US$10,000. The pageant was held at the Olympic Center in the capital city of Seoul and attracted over 1,300 competitors from the north, south and east of the kingdom, all vying for the title of Miss Cambodia 2012. In a tight race, the newly crowned Miss Cambodia was "Borath" Vannarith, the 22-year old performer and finalist, who, despite a strong nationalistic stance and a strong following on social media, was not allowed to compete in the 2011 event. "On my first day in Cambodia, the organizers told me I could not compete in the event and then in the last day I saw my name in the line up." Borath told EMTV. "I realized then that this was a political decision and I am really happy with the decision by the organizers to allow me to compete in the event." Despite her small stature, the Miss Cambodia 1cb139a0ed
